Arguments against allowing cell phones in school might include:

- Phones are expensive pieces of equipment that can be lost or stolen.
- Students could cheat with a phone.
- Phones are a distraction. Students could text or play games while a teacher is trying to teach.

When writing their persuasive essays, students should be encouraged to include a topic sentence (or topic paragraph) stating their opinion, followed by persuasive details to support their point of view. Writers can also acknowledge the opinions of those who might have a different view, and follow up with an argument to make their case.
